Nostradamus and the Antichrist, Code Named: Mabus By John Hogue

ANTICHRIST...

The name for the personification of evil. He's the Agent Smith shadow cast by every messianic Neo trying to save those in the Matrix of illusion. He's the opposite of Christ the "anointed one of God."

The great sixteenth-century physician and seer, Michel de Nostredame (1503–1566), better known by his Latinized nome-de-plume, Nostradamus, foresaw not one, but three Antichrists. Each would be responsible for taking humanity one step towards the world's complete destruction.

Nostradamus took great pains to cloak the names of his three candidates for Antichrist in coded anagrams: to protect the innocent from those in the future that might recognize themselves in his prophecies and do worse. (And they were looking.)

Nostradamus code-named the first of his three Antichrists "PAU, NAY, LORON." All in uppercase. An obvious decoding would give us three towns in southwestern France: Pau, Nay and (O)loron. The rest of the prophecy strays the subject away from three villages to describe a human being. The upper-case presentation is a literary nudge in our sides to envisage a person's name hidden in the letters spelling three towns. Can the name "Napoleon" be found in it?

Nostradamus code-named the second Antichrist "Hifter"—or "Hister" with a Gothic s—(f)—after the ancient name of the River Danube, which is the Ister. This anagram is just one replacement letter away from spelling out Adolf "Hitler."

Nostradamus gave the Third Antichrist the following code name: "Mabus." Though his true name is occulted, his destiny is made clear. World War III begins when Mabus dies an untimely death.

One thing is made certain. Mabus will never live through the world war he ignites—a conflict that will last 27 years. Unlike his predecessors, PAU, NAY, LORON and Hister, the Third Antichrist is one of the first to fall in a hecatomb of terror and revenge that in its darkest potential covers the world in an icy red rain.

This is the hottest prophetic detective case discussed among an estimated 20 million Nostradamus fans around the world. All signs are that we are living in the days of the Third Antichrist. It is time to decode the enigma of Mabus—the third and final man of evil who stands in the way of Nostradamus’ most cherished alternative destiny set for our future: a Millennium of Peace on Earth.

This thought provoking eBook will transport us through dark and prophetic shadows to uncloak the man who would be king of Armageddon. World renowned Nostradamus and prophecy expert John Hogue, invites you to use this book as a manual for future-sleuths interested in unlocking clues to a preventable mass murder of humanity. There are indications in the prophecies of Nostradamus that we have Free Will. We can forestall oncoming calamity. We can change the future by changing our actions today and expose the bloody hand of Mabus before his martyrdom causes Armageddon.

“I have known John Hogue for fifteen years. Every year, he predicts on the program [Dreamland] and every year, he proves to be fireproof. He's accurate. Uncannily accurate!”

—Whitley Strieber, author of “Communion” and “The Coming Global Superstorm” with Art Bell
