Editorial Review

Review

"This is a clean romance, so there is no detailed descriptions of them being together, but this book doesn't need all that. Shanna Hatfield did a marvelous job at making me fall in love with her characters and I didn't feel as though I was missing anything. I was a little worried how the characters were going to survive as a couple, but this author gave me a perfect ending. Overall, LOVE AT THE 20-YARD LINE is an enjoyable read that will keep you occupied for a couple hours." The Romance Reviews

From the Author

Since I usually write about cowboys, both current and in the past, some people asked what inspired me to write about a football player.

Here's the thing...

My husband, Captain Cavedweller, loves football. I mean, really loves football.

For his birthday two years ago, I bought him a pair of season tickets to the nearest arena football games (about an hour away from us). After attending the first year, going the following season wasn't even a question. It was a given.

If you've never been to an arena (indoor) football game, they play on a smaller field with eight players instead of eleven. Because things are smaller in scale, it just seems more intimate with up-close excitement.

While I sat watching all those games, I started thinking in "what if" mode. As in, "what if there was a football player?" "What if he fell in love with a girl at the game?" "What if..."

About the Author

Shanna Hatfield is a hopeless romantic with a bit of sarcasm thrown in for good measure.

In addition to blogging, eating too much chocolate, and being smitten with her husband (Captain Cavedweller), she writes clean romantic fiction with a healthy dose of humor.

Shanna is a member of Western Writers of America, Women Writing the West, and Romance Writers of America.
